2. Independence from parents
3. Responsibility for actions
4. Mastery of fundamental baseball skills

Competing to the End
Winning and Losing Well

How You Can Best Help as a Scouts Parent:

- Be a "silent" supporter
- Relieve pressure instead of creating it
- Demonstrate a consistent emotional approach with the boys
- Be affirming toward your son regardless of performance
- Express your support as a parent, not as an umpire or coach
- Handle failure and success with consistency
- Reinforce the baseball skills being taught
- Take responsibility to support all players, not just your son

A Few Other Thoughts:

Our primary focus is not on creating elite youth baseball players and teams.
We're focused on developing our boys into mature young men.

As coaches, we are teachers first and foremost.

As members of the Xenia Scouts Family, we will not compete against each other.
We will compete together against anything that keeps us from growing as players, coaches, and parents.

I have read the above Xenia Scouts Youth Organizational Philosophy and agree with it
